

Constructive Criticism - How to Give AND How to Receive

- Traci Hunter Abramson

---

Little terrifies a writer more than sharing his or her work with another, yet one of the keys to success is to find that constructive criticism and learn how to use it well. This class will explore how to sort through that criticism while still maintaining the integrity of your story as well as your voice, how to give good feedback, and what to do when it isn't working. We will also discuss ways to find critique partners and writing groups that work for you.